REFERENCE:

A Study-Abroad Program is an academically and personally challenging program that expects students to take advantage of the unique geographic, cultural, and academic characteristics of institutions and/or regions and to learn from both the experiential and traditional academic methods and to synthesize these approaches. Students are involved in challenging cross-cultural situations, both in and out of the classroom. To succeed, the applicant must have a high degree of academic and personal motivation and the ability to adjust to people of different social and cultural backgrounds. In making decisions on the appropriateness of a student's participation in the study-abroad program, we need to know about their motivation, adaptability, academic skills, and those personal qualities that will give students the ability to benefit fully from the experience. While we will appreciate any observations that will assist us in evaluating the present applicant, of special interest are qualities such as competence, independence, assertiveness, resourcefulness, quality of performance, confidence, social skills, open-mindedness, and integrity. We cannot overemphasize, therefore, the value of your candid appraisal of the applicant's chances for academic and non-academic success in a study-abroad program, weighing both strong and weak points. We will be happy to accept a letter in lieu of this form.

Please note: We accept students into programs on an application basis. A study-abroad placement cannot be given to a student until all of the student's application materials are received. Since the candidate's application cannot be reviewed until we receive this form, please submit this reference before the indicated deadline date to the student or to the coordinator as indicated above.
